“.....I’m fine just busy with education. I want to take a moment to share with you my experiences so far and express my gratitude for your unwavering support.

I am almost completing two months in University and it's been an exciting challenging experience balancing studies, time for self care and adapting to the new environment.

I’m taking six courses for this year of study which are Anatomy, Physiology, Biochemistry, Foundation of Faith, Professionalism and Ethics, ICT and Communication skills. It's a highly demanding academic workload but I’m determined to work hard and make you proud.

There are not much whereabouts so far, just attending classes for theory and practical learning. I am also expecting exams before I leave for one week Christmas holidays. Outside classes I attend prayer sessions with my colleagues every Monday, Wednesday and Friday evenings and go to church on Sundays. I also have joined a club pertaining to medical social outreaches and I am also expecting to participate in a charity visit to an orphanage here in Moshi at the end of next week.

That's where I've got to so far. Thank you once again I truly appreciate the support and love that has made this journey possible and please don't hesitate to reach out if you'd like to hear more about my journey, I'd love to share.

Kind regards Sarah
